Capitol Ministries in Alaska

When I met Ralph Drollinger with Capitol Ministries for the first time, his imposing 7-ft stature made me feel like a little child again. Carrying on a close conversation with him gave me a crick in my neck. It was abundantly clear why he was heavily recruited in his earlier days and went on to play basketball four years at UCLA under the legendary coach John Wooden and win four national championships. He was drafted and played a few years in the NBA before responding to a special call from the Lord.

It didn't take long after meeting him for me to sense his passion for teaching the Word of God. He shared with me a burden he has for the political leaders of our nation and the responsibility we as believers have to pray for local and national leaders. Paul instructed Timothy in chapter two of his first letter, "First of all, then, I urge that petitions, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for everyone, for kings and all those who are in authority, so that we may lead a tranquil and quiet life in all godliness and dignity. This is good, and it pleases God our Savior, who wants everyone to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth." (1 Timothy 2:1-4 CSB)

We understand that God, who created the world and everything in it, is sovereign in the affairs of men. His hand down through the ages demonstrates that He appoints men and women at crucial moments in history to be leaders and uses them to fulfill His will. We also know that in order to fulfill His will, one must have an understanding of the truth. His Word is truth and stands as the highest authority known to man, even above charters, constitutions, governing edicts and man-made laws. Therefore, it is imperative that leaders be instructed in the truths of God's Word and make decisions in accordance with that truth.

Capitol Ministries was founded 27 years ago by Ralph and Danielle Drollinger. It has grown to coordinate Bible studies in Washington D.C. as well as 34 state capitols and 24 foreign nations on four continents. Here in Alaska, we now have a presence among legislative leaders that has been openly supported by Governor Dunleavy. The 2023 legislative session began in January and Bible study and prayer is now being offered every Thursday morning at the state capitol in Juneau. I am leading these studies each week and am encouraged by the depth of faith in several of our state senators and representatives. Many of them believe God has placed them in this role to serve His purposes in our state and our daily lives.

I invite you to join me in prayer daily for our local, state, and national leaders. Many of them are separated from their families during these months of activity writing new laws and addressing concerns that affect all Alaskans. They make sacrifices to fulfill a responsibility that carries a tremendous burden. They have personally solicited the prayers of God's people that they may know the will of God and serve the people they represent. Let's be known as people of prayer and support our leaders in this important ministry.

Gearing Up for Summer

March is here and the longer days with abundant sunshine are a blessing!

Almost a quarter into 2023 and we have so much to celebrate and give thanks for! Beginning the year with record snowfall and a brand new grandson in our family has left little time for wondering what to do or where to spend our time...either shoveling or cuddling.

The regional State Evangelism Conference meetings were met with great response and good attendance. Speakers were engaging and challenging and our friend from Alabama, Scotty Goldman, was able to make connections regionally for mission engagement opportunities for the year and years to come. Please send us your requests for mission teams and activities so they can be listed on the Mission Opportunities page of our website.

We are anticipating a good turn out for our Send Network Summit March 6 at First Baptist Church, Anchorage. This is a gathering of Sending and Supporting Church Pastors/Leaders, Church Planters, Residency Coordinators and others interested in celebrating and strategizing how to best engage our cities and communities with the gospel, make disciples and plant churches. It will be exciting to see how we collaborate for future ministry here in Alaska.

The ABRN Missions and Church Development Committee recently approved and passed along a few requests for assistance to our churches:

Foundation Church Soldotna (sponsored by Anchor of Hope Church Kenai) was awarded funds to assist the plant in their launch on March 5. Foundation Church also received a startup grant from NAMB/Send Network to help secure needed audio/visual and signage. We are excited to partner in this plant and can't wait to see how God uses Foundation Church on the peninsula!

LaVerne Griffin Camp is gearing up for another promising summer of camps and activities and is recruiting six summer missionaries to help staff and work the ten-week season. If you are aware of a college student who feels called to service and missions this summer, please contact the camp for an application. It would be wonderful to fill all six positions with Alaska students serving others at the Camp!

Salcha Baptist Church is continuing a very busy and effective Firewood Ministry. Partnering with them to acquire needed shelter and tools for expanding this ministry was one of the decisions the committee made and we look forward to hearing how the blessing of heat opens the door for gospel conversations and conversions in the future. Bless you Salcha as you meet needs and share Christ!

North Bear Street Church recently gifted their building and assets to Agape Fellowship Palmer. While we never celebrate a church closing we do celebrate the legacy and generosity of North Bear Church and the ministry that has taken place there for years. The legacy will continue to live on as the blessing of a building and facilities will allow Agape to minister and grow in the Valley. Some needed upgrades and modifications were presented to the Committee and were approved pending authorization from the Hatcher Pass Baptist Association to help Agape be able to officially begin meeting on location by Easter.

Partnering in missions and giving to and through the Cooperative Program makes a huge difference in the lives of those yet to respond to Christ.

The 2023 Minister and Spouse Retreat is set for April 20-22 at the Captain Cook Hotel in Anchorage. Our friends from First Baptist Church, Bentonville, Arkansas will be here helping to host and bless our people with great worship and encouragement, and plenty of gifts and door prizes. Please sign up online at www.alaskabrn.com. This will be a great time of fellowship and worship!

The first night Carole and I were able to babysit our new grandson, Jax, was glorious. He played and made baby sounds, ate and went right to sleep. We placed him in his little bassinet and he was sleeping soundly when his parents got home, they were amazed.

Last night when Jason came to get him he was in a different outfit and screaming at the top of his lungs, but when Dad picked him up and started bouncing him he calmed right down, he was missing his Dad.

If you are feeling like things are going wrong and you just want to scream at the top of your lungs, embrace your Heavenly Father and rest in Him. He is all you will ever need.

TYPES OF MEETINGS (PART 3 OF 6)

The Alaska Baptist Resource Network, has an open meeting policy. Anyone may attend meetings of the Board, but only Board members may speak or vote.

The Annual Meeting is similar. Anyone may attend, but only Messengers, authorized by their home church and certified by the Credentials Committee, may speak or vote.

In both cases, there are times when invited guests may speak, but they may not vote.

These are both instances of a Public Session.

Executive Session is when the meeting is conducted with only members present, and invited guests who are necessary for the subject under consideration. All attendees are obligated to keep the discussion secret. Depending on the organization, its rules, and the subject matter, differing levels of disciplinary action can be taken against those who violate the secrecy of an executive session.

South Carolina church turns ‘trash into cash’ for missions

By Sue Sprenkle

The 80-year-old man crawls halfway into the green trash bin, feet barely touching the ground. He rummages through discarded bags. Not hearing the familiar jingle of tin and aluminum cans, Dave Joslin pulls his head out and motions for his dog to move on.

“I never intended to be a bag lady,” the retired postal worker jokes as he shuffles down the sidewalk in his Sumter, South Carolina, neighborhood. “But when God gives you a mission, like turning trash into cash, you do it.

“I might not be able to share the gospel in far-off places,” Joslin continues, “but I can make sure someone else can through my Lottie Moon offering.”

Jerry Burke, retired post office carrier, and Rodney Howard, teaching pastor of Salt and Light Church, discuss their process of scrapping metal outside the A&P Recycling company, Sumter, S.C. the entire church helps with the recycling ministry. Some bring the trash to a central location while others sort and turn it in for cash.

Joslin and his fellow members at Salt and Light Church boost their annual offering to international missions in a unique way — recycling. This year they raised more than $21,000.

The idea to collect scrap metal surfaced more than a decade ago when the 45-member church set a Lottie Moon Christmas Offering® goal of $4,000. Joslin wasn’t satisfied. He knew the annual offering went 100% to missionaries sharing the gospel in the least-reached places of the world. So, he countered with $10,000. The small congregation turned to him in surprise.

Joslin flashed a mischievous grin and asked, “Where’s your faith?”

Questioning someone’s faith can be fighting words in the South, even more so in a Celebrate Recovery church like Salt and Light. The 12-step addiction recovery program prioritizes placing addictions in Christ’s care. Stepping out in faith isn’t a weekly or even a daily topic here; it’s second-by-second until eternity. In a congregation where the recovery program and its values are woven into the church’s DNA, the idea of scrapping metal for missions hits at its very core. Turning recyclable scraps into a way to spread the gospel is a picture that parallels the transformation of people as they surrender their lives and wills over to the care and control of Christ.

Even with this vision, money is something the church never emphasizes. Making ends meet can be difficult when piecing lives back together and working on recovery. Others are retired and live on fixed incomes. This didn’t deter Joslin. He knew they could raise the funds by putting in a little work recycling.

“I know times are tough, but everyone has trash,” he encouraged.

Trash to Cash

Ten years later, recycling for missions is instilled deep in the church’s identity. So much so that members joke about their compulsion to stop in the middle of the road to grab a can or cruise neighborhoods looking for discarded appliances. For them, the Lottie offering emphasis is year-round, not just in November and December.

It’s not uncommon to find volunteers working on a sunny February afternoon. Pastor Rodney Howard and Jerry Burke, church member, sort different types of metal into piles behind the pastor’s house. Some local businesses and animal rescue homes donate their cans each week. Others in the community call the church to pick up an appliance to strip or harvest metal from condemned properties. One time the city of Sumter donated chain linked fences.

“People know that we do this and they want to be a part of it,” Howard says, emphasizing this effort is larger than their church now.

Sorting the metals to get the best price is smelly and tedious work. Howard scrunches up his nose when he gets a whiff of soured cat food. When he stumbles on a muddy object in a bag, the pastor pulls out a big magnet to test for metal. Joslin shuffles over from where he supervises the two younger men in their 60s. He pulls apart magnetic reading glasses to do his own test. It sticks. He nods and Howard tosses it in the recycle bin while Burke loads the trailer.

The latest haul of scrap metal brought in $82.09 for Salt and Light Church’s Lottie Moon Christmas Offering. the church has grown their offering each year through scrapping metal all year long in Sumter, S.C. when the church first began, their offering goal was $500. More than 20 years later, the goal has grown to $10,000.

The men put everything from a washing machine, sink, aluminum siding and cans to strings of wire and car batteries on the trailer. Then, they guess how much this haul will bring before heading to the recycling center. One estimates $45; another $42. “Sometimes all the work you put into this for such a small amount doesn’t seem worth it,” Howard admits. He holds up an $82 check from the day’s haul and adds, “We did pretty good today, but what can $82 really do?"

Howard gives a knowing smile as he launches into his favorite points about supporting missions. Though small, today's haul might purchase 40 Bibles in Ukrainian or buy two audio players for missionaries to use for digital evangelism. It might even be used to print 82 gospel tracts in a different language and transform someone's life.

"When we take load after load each week, it adds up over the course of a year," the pastor explains. "Then, when our $20,000 is added to what other Southern Baptist churches give [to Lottie Moon], we can send missionaries and support a gospel movement."

"This is how a small church like ours can have a global kingdom impact."

Called to Give

Joslin brags like a proud father about those who stepped up to lead this ministry during his recent battle with cancer. Like most people he recruited through the years to help, Burke prefers staying in the background. For years he collected cans and cut cords off discarded electronics after work. Now, the new retiree drives around Sumter to pick up cans at businesses and helps sort the metals before taking it to the recycling center.

"I may not be called to stand on the street corner and preach but I have been called. I'm doing the Lord's work here," Burke says, raising the cans still in his hands. "This is my little way of helping spread the Word all over the world."

This is why Joslin challenged the church so many years ago to step out in faith. It was never about the offering goal, even though they met it. All he ever wanted was for God to creatively use Salt and Light Church.

When Joslin looks at his church, he doesn't see people recovering or struggling through hard times. He sees compassionate believers who know exactly what it means to receive help and support. He sees people who step out in faith, no matter how hard the work might be.

He sees a church "called to give."
