Hebrews 12:1

75th
ANNUAL MEETING

September 28-30, 2020
First Baptist Church, Anchorage

Randy Covington, Executive Director

The Church Has Left The Building

Who could have imagined even a month ago that churches would not be able to gather for weekly worship services and Bible study? For most of us in America, this was a first. Pastors, worship leaders, and Bible study leaders were faced with a dilemma where they had no contingency plan. How do we continue to shepherd the flock when we can't see them? How do we maintain the teaching/preaching/worshipping element of the church so crucial to individual spiritual growth? How do we minister to a locked-down community? These were the questions many were asking.

Social distancing seems to be an oxymoron. "Social" means needing companionship in community while "distancing" means making someone remote or far off. One of the essential elements of the church is fellowship within the community of faith. However, I have observed over the past 3-4 weeks how churches have adapted to new ways of fulfilling their calling. Live-streaming, Facebook Live, Zoom and Vimeo have become a part of our everyday vocabulary, which has precipitated a swift learning curve for many. Some churches are prerecording worship to be uploaded to a social media platform, while others are using livestream tools for simultaneous participation. Drive-in worship services, where congregants remain in their cars in the church parking lot listening to music and messages either by loudspeaker or by FM transmission, are becoming popular as well.

What was normal for us has become abnormal and has created a great deal of anxiety. This experience has allowed us a taste of what believers in countries that forbid religious freedom perceive as normal. What else can we learn from this lockdown? It has forced us to expand the use of technology in our proclamation of the gospel. Churches are finding that they are reaching a wider audience when they are on-line. What about giving? Digital, text and draft giving have become essential conduits for maintaining the support of the local ministry. These are good lessons that will serve us well after the coronavirus pandemic has subsided and we can return to our church buildings.

I pray that as we endure this temporary restriction to our basic freedoms, we will continue to be the church. The building is empty, but the church is still alive and well. Maybe God is trying to teach us something important. This one thing I know! Every crisis in history has been followed by an earnest pursuit of answers to life's dilemma. It is an opportune moment for the church to share that our hope is in God and there is nothing to fear when we are in His hands. May the church be ready to respond with the hope of the gospel for a lost and hurting world.

Sarah Cambridge was unanimously elected by the Board of Directors of Birchwood Behavioral Health on April 14 to serve as the next Executive Director. She began her service with Birchwood Behavioral Health in 2016 after completing her Master's degree in Psychology from American Public University. During her time at Birchwood, Sarah has served in many different positions. Her current role is outpatient clinician seeing 12-15 clients a week. Sarah lives by the motto, "See a need, fill a need." She believes in using the gifts that God has given her to support the mental and emotional needs of families and children within the Alaskan community.

Sarah was raised in a Christian family, accepted Christ as her Lord and Savior at the age of 14 and was baptized. She has attended a Christian Church in Eagle River since moving here in 2011. She has been married for twenty years to Michael and they have raised two children, Christian and Kristyna, here in Alaska. The Cambridge family also includes their dog, Lucky. When Sarah is not working, she enjoys traveling, camping, hiking, fishing, four-wheeling and playing board games with her family.

Originally from southern California, Sarah met Michael in high school and they married in November 2000. Michael joined the Air Force in 2000 and has served several overseas deployments to the Middle East, South Korea and Italy. Eventually receiving orders to JBER, the Cambridge family drove to Alaska, making their home in Eagle River.

In 2015, Sarah completed her master's degree in Psychology. She said, "I decided that I wanted to use my education and talents to help others. This led to coming to work at Birchwood Behavioral Health. Alaska is where we want to raise our children and build our lives. We have strong ties to our community and have no plans to leave Alaska."

In order for God to bring something new, He must disrupt something normal.

In order for God to bring something new, He must disrupt something normal.

In chapter 3 of the book of Joshua, we read of Joshua leading the entire nation of Israel to a flooded Jordan River to watch God miraculously part the water, allowing 2 million people to cross on dry ground and finally enter the Promised Land.

Forty years prior, God had delivered His people from the captivity and slavery of Egypt to the edge of this Promised Land, only to have the people shrink back in fear and disbelief that God could deliver what He promised. The result was that the nation of Israel, instead of acting on faith and accepting the gift God was trying to give them, was condemned to wander around in the wilderness until the generation of disobedient unbelievers passed away. For forty years God supplied the nation with food (manna) and water as they wandered around thinking God had abandoned them while, in truth, He was providing for their every need.

A generation of Israelite children were born and grew up and watched their predecessors die in the wilderness. To them it was normal to get up every day, gather food and go about the daily necessities of life in the wilderness.

They didn't know anything different. To this generation it was considered normal. But all of this was about to change.

The entire nation of Israel would be transformed from a lost, disobedient nation without a land to call their own, into a delivered people entering an inheritance promised to their forefathers by The Creator.

The details of the miraculous river crossing are significant. The astounding obedience and faith required to follow cannot be overstated. The courage and perseverance of the priests to stand in the riverbed, surrounded by the walls of water, and bear the Ark of the Testimony while two million people filed by into safety challenges my imagination.

God was bringing something new. But in order to bring the new, He had to disrupt the normal.

Our normal has been disrupted.

What is God doing that is new in you?

I'm praying for each of you. I'm praying that you and I, like Joshua and the Israelites, will hear what God is speaking to us and be enthusiastically obedient to His instructions, having the faith to put our feet into the floodwaters if that is what He commands.

Serving together for the glory of God.

Pandemic

It's a word most of us didn't give much thought to outside of dystopian novels and Hollywood thrillers. Outside of far flung corners of the world and a near miss with the Swine Flu in 2009, the very idea of the entire world coming to a grinding halt, all at the same time, was surely a thought far from our minds and, even should we contemplate it, I doubt we would have crafted the scenarios we currently find ourselves in:

- Sanitizing groceries we've had delivered to our front doors
- HAVING groceries delivered to our front doors as a normal function
- The obliteration of the handshake for the foreseeable future
- Radical changes to daily life and work that finds us embracing technology in new ways and altering our normal habits and routines

All of this radical change has had great effect on our churches, ministries, members, and the people who lead them. Words that buzz around our condition such as anxious, fearful, grief, and loss give rise to the specter of the unknown as we wait each day for another bit of news and insight. It is no wonder that the world around us is seeking answers and lashing out. Even for those of great faith, these times can be trying and tempt us to give audience to despair. I've felt the dogs of desperation nipping around my own ankles as I have struggled with the tensions between personal liberty and compassion toward others. The pressures of attempting to guide the church God lets me serve, and other organizations for which I bear some responsibility, have felt at times, overwhelming. It is no short walk to a place of anger and resentment for the situation in which we find ourselves.

And yet... as I choose to turn my eyes toward Jesus, I find again our Rock and our Fortress; the One who will never leave nor forsake us; the ONE who causes all things to work together for good, to those who love Him and are called according to His purpose.

And I find my bearings once again. It does not make me blind or deaf to the cares of the world around me. Neither does it eliminate my deep concern and desire to see all of this come to an end. What it DOES do, is remind of the words in Romans 8:38: For I am sure that neither death nor life, nor angels nor rulers, nor things present or things to come, nor powers, nor heights nor depth, nor ANYTHING ELSE IN ALL CREATION, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our lord.

And so, I encourage you to remain steadfast in your trust and dependence on the presence and person of Jesus Christ. As you minister to your congregations and to one another, I pray you will keep the promise of the love of God close to your mind. With it as your guide, take practical action to engage with one another during this time of physical distancing. I'm sure you've recognized in yourself and others, the growing need to be connected in meaningful ways, as much as possible. Ultimately, be reminded that we will get through this. It will come to an end. It is my sincere prayer that when the time comes, those whom we serve, and those who have observed from afar, will say they have seen us living out our faith as those who trust in the love of God in Christ Jesus, above all fears, anxieties, troubles, and calamities which may come our way.

Now may the Lord of peace himself give you peace at all times in every way. The Lord be with you all. ~
Thessalonians 3:16

Cold Bay Community Chapel

The parsonage needs an arctic entry and staircase on the front. Damaged flooring needs to be replaced in the living area, hallways and bathroom. Four wired smoke alarms need to be acquired and installed. The pantry and kitchen storage areas will be finished, two bathrooms remodeled and soffit ventilation installed.
