Why I'm Proud To Be A Southern Baptist: Part 1 - Fundamental Truths

I was a Southern Baptist before I knew what that was! Since my parents were Southern Baptist, I was too. That's not to say it's an automatic alliance, but I soon came to understand why I was proud to be a Southern Baptist. As a young man responding to the call to full-time ministry, I began my journey of formal education. I was shocked to learn that as a seminary student, my tuition was largely covered by the Cooperative Program. It was in seminary that I learned about who Southern Baptists really were. While there are many reasons why I am Southern Baptist, I wish to share four fundamental truths that are indicative of Southern Baptists. Next month I will share four foundational distinctives of Southern Baptists.

TRUTH #1: WE ARE PEOPLE OF THE WORD – Southern Baptists acknowledge that God's Word is the full revelation of Himself and the plan for His creation. We believe His Word to be divinely inspired, inerrant and infallible and the only authoritative guide for the world today. We study the Bible to know God's heart and to hear Him speak in a way that penetrates our very souls. His Word is timely and timeless and relevant throughout the history of mankind. (2 Timothy 3:16-17)

TRUTH #2: WE ARE A MISSIONAL PEOPLE – The Great Commandment (Matt. 22:37) and the Great Commission (Matt 28:19-20) are our marching orders. The Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) is a network of cooperating churches with the express purpose to "elicit, combine, and direct the energies of the Baptist denomination of Christians for the propagation of the gospel." Having served as a missionary overseas with the International Mission Board, I have experienced the missional fervor of Southern Baptists. I am proud to be associated with this all-consuming passion to bring lost people to faith in Jesus Christ.

TRUTH #3: WE ARE A ROYAL PRIESTHOOD – The apostle Peter reminds us that we are a chosen people, a royal priesthood for God's own desire. (1 Peter 2:5-9) This means that we have direct access to the Father through prayer and are personally responsible for our relationship to the Father. While there may be those called for a specific leadership role, everyone is personally accountable to God for his own salvation. It also becomes his/her obligation to discover their individual gifting and use it for the purposes of Kingdom advancement.

TRUTH #4: WE ARE "ONE" PEOPLE – The song states, "We're a part of the family, the family of God." Jesus prayed to the Father in John 17 that we would all be one, even as he and the Father are one. (v 21) As children of the heavenly Father, we are to be united in love, in hope, and in purpose. While we may not always agree with one another, we can be unified in our identity in Christ and our calling as His children.

Southern Baptists are not perfect! Churches are not perfect nor are religious institutions. We serve only by the grace of God and the mercy that He extended to us. In His divine sovereignty, He uses us to fulfill His task of redeeming lost humanity. There can be no greater calling to which one can give his life.

Jae McKee, State Director of Missions and Church Planting

Waiting...

The myriad of tracks in the sand told the story. I was not the first to come this way today. Bear, wolf, fox and otter had been here too.

The sandpipers and yellowlegs had taken their usual positions nearby and waited patiently for the tide to start moving and stirring up their crustacean breakfasts.

A glow of orange, yellow and red began to brighten, silhouetting Pavlov volcano and the Aghileen Pinnacles of the Aleutian peninsula.

The net was set. The tide was slack. The water was calm. Anticipation. Expectation. What will the day bring?

The majesty and wonder of Creator God surrounded me, it was like waking up in a dream too breathtaking for words.

In the periphery to my left, a movement. Ripples on the surface at first, then the unmistakable wake of water breaking over a fish's back, heading towards the net.

A splash. Then thrashing. Then quiet. The first fish of the day, subdued.

Precious few times in life are we allowed the peace and tranquility that God provides in such a majestic arena undisturbed by the rush and cares of this world.

Much of our life is spent in anticipation of things, or a thing, yet to come.

We plan, prepare and execute (to the best of our ability) the actions that drive us toward our intended goals, fully expecting the desired outcome. When successful, we celebrate. When unsuccessful, we start over.

Much time is spent waiting.

Isaiah 40:31 instructs;

³¹ But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.

Sometimes waiting feels like wasting time.

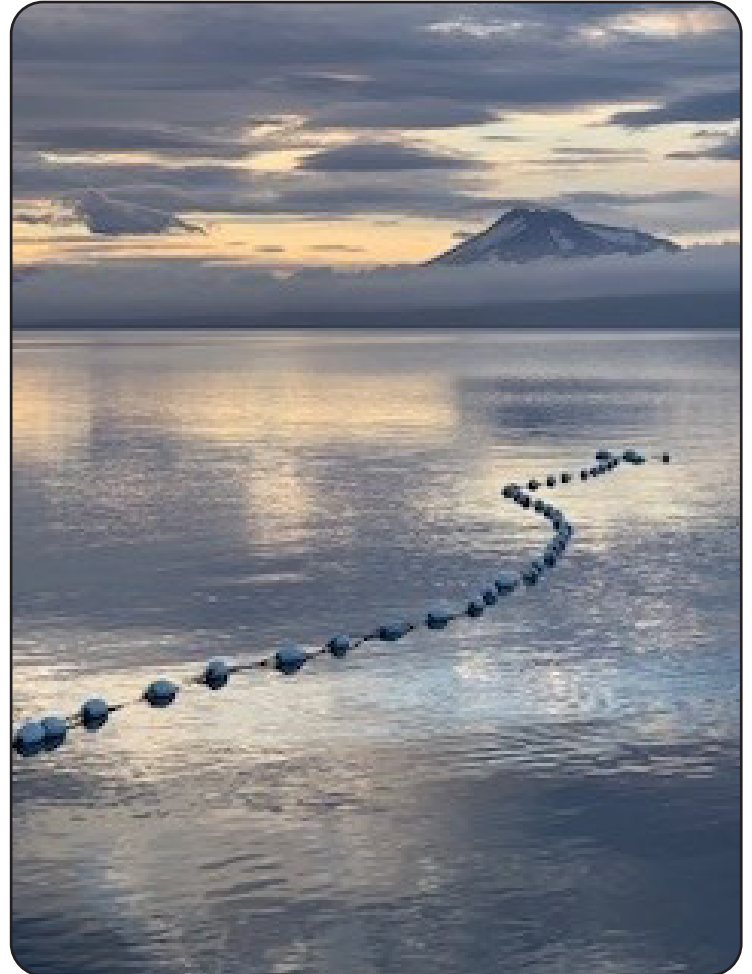

God uses our waiting as an opportunity for observation, inspiration and renewal.

God uses our waiting to strengthen, to prepare and to bless us.

What will the day bring? When will the volcano erupt? When will the fish come?

The disciples asked Jesus in Acts 1:6 "Will you at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?"

Jesus replied, "It is not for you to know the time or the season which the Father has put under His own authority.

But you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you and you shall be my witnesses in Jerusalem, Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth."

Plan, prepare, proceed.

Pursue the presence of God. Allow His Spirit to fill you to overflowing. Be a faithful witness.

Often in Alaska we feel as if we are at the end of the earth. Many places in our state are hard to access and even if accessible, very expensive to reach.

The beauty is overwhelming but more so is the need for Jesus.

As those who have come before us were faithful to the calling an purpose that God intended for them, let us also be faithful in waiting, being filled with His Spirit and being the witnesses that we have been commissioned to be.

May our tracks lead others to Jesus.

Everyday conversations yield gospel opportunities in Central Asia

By Sarah Alexander

Daily conversations hold possibilities for sharing the gospel in Central Asia. International Mission Board missionary Josh Oakes is looking for each opportunity.

Small talk about the weather? Josh will introduce God as the Creator and Sustainer of life.

A comment about politics? Josh sees an open door to talk about the fallenness of man and our need for a Savior.

Day to day Josh uses what he calls “gospel hooks” to start spiritual conversations. Turning quickly to deeper topics, he listens to discern whether someone is searching for truth or closed and uninterested. In this way, he is using the gospel as a filter to determine where God is working in people’s hearts.

Gospel hooks vary depending on cultures. Missionaries who live and serve among the lost learn the culture and develop long-term relationships with the people. This presence leads to an understanding of how the gospel can best be shared to a particular people group.

“Different people think about anthropology or factors like age or gender as whether or not this person is going to be interested in the gospel, but what we have found is what Paul tells us in 2 Corinthians 2:15-17 is the best approach,” Josh said.

“We want to smell like God, be the aroma of Christ to everyone. For those we smell like life to, then they are going to want to be around us more. When we smell like death, they are going to distance themselves.”

Toward the end of the pandemic, Josh’s readiness to seize opportunities using gospel hooks started a spiritual conversation with a man named “Good News.” Names provide a great opportunity in Central Asia for launching into deeper topics, because they usually have special meaning.

Josh began telling the man that “gospel” translates to good news – the term Christians use for describing the gift Jesus gives to us. Meanwhile, two more men walked into the room. The first man’s name was Abraham, and the second man’s name meant “salvation.”

“I laughed and told them that it seemed like God was wanting me to share something very important with all of them,” he said.

The men seemed interested, so Josh explained the meaning of their names. Their names reminded him of the good news that a descendant of Abraham came to earth, providing salvation for the world by giving His life as a sacrifice for sin.

At just that moment, a man named Hussein walked in the door.

“I froze and told the other men in the room that Hussein was an Arabic name so I didn’t know what it meant. They laughed and said they didn’t know if it connected with the message I was sharing with them or not,” Josh said.

Hussein looked confused, but then he turned to the man named Good News and said that he had come to this office because Isa (the Arabic rendering of “Jesus” and a common name in Central Asia) had sent him.

“The men in the room then all looked at me surprised. Isa had told Hussein to go to the office of ‘Good News’ to ask a question while Abraham and ‘Salvation’ were there hearing the gospel!” Josh explained.

While none of the men immediately responded to the gospel message, Josh believes God orchestrated these events.

“Five men heard the gospel that day, and one of them asked if we could exchange phone numbers. Praise the Lord!” Josh said.

Leading a team in evangelism and church planting, Josh encourages his co-workers to be ready at any moment for opportunities to talk about Jesus. He believes the more they speak of Him, the more readily they will be able to discern where to invest in deeper relationships.

“Time is our most valuable resource, so we want to be intentional to engage in these spiritual conversations,” Josh added.

Josh’s name has been changed for security reasons.

Zaza men chat after a wedding celebration. The men often gather and visit throughout the day of the wedding at the home of the groom. The Zaza are a people group who live in Turkey.

Sarah Alexander serves with the IMB in Central Asia.

PARLIAMENTARY CORNER

Minutes: approval of Reading and approval of the minutes occurs immediately after the call to order and any opening ceremonies. If the minutes have been sent to members in advance, the chair announces that this was done, and the minutes need not be read aloud unless a member requests it be done.

A draft of the minutes sent in advance must be clearly marked as such. The secretary's draft of the minutes does not become the minutes, that is, the official record, until they have been approved. After approval, only the secretary's corrected version is official.

It is not necessary to have a formal motion to approve the minutes, although it is not out of order. At the appropriate time, the chair says "Are there any corrections to the minutes?" Corrections are usually handled by unanimous consent. If, however, a member objects to a correction it is handled as an amendment to a main motion.

When there is no response to the chair's question "Are there any corrections [or "further corrections"] to the minutes?" the chair says: "There being no corrections [or "no further corrections"] to the minutes, the minutes stand [or "are"] approved [or "approved as read," or "approved as corrected"]. Even if a formal motion for approval has been made, it is not necessary to take a formal vote.

"A member's absence from the meeting for which minutes are being approved does not prevent the member from participating in their correction or approval."
