Alaska Baptist Disaster Relief

While November 10 is officially Disaster Relief Appreciation Day in the Southern Baptist Convention, I want to shine a brighter light on the great work that is being done in Alaska for preparing a resource network to respond to disasters and crises that occur from time to time. Gary Bearce is our volunteer Disaster Relief Coordinator for Alaska. He is doing an amazing job building a local team, providing essential training, and securing equipment.

We have been blessed with partners connected to other state conventions that have shared resources to purchase and equip a shower/laundry trailer. With assistance from Kansas/Nebraska in procurement along with funding from South Carolina Baptist Convention and Home Depot through Southern Baptist Disaster Relief, we now have a trailer equipped and available to respond to a disaster in a moment's notice. California Baptists have also offered a van, trailer and a generator at no cost to supplement the small arsenal of tools needed to respond adequately.

Gary has been attending training in other states as the options in Alaska are limited. He has been deployed, along with response teams from other states, to recent disasters in Texas, Florida, Nebraska, and Puerto Rico. He says, "The greatest need we have right now is for volunteers who will step up and become trained to respond in the event of a local disaster."

Due to the dry conditions this past summer, forest fires were rampant across our state. Alaska Baptist Disaster Relief was able to respond to the immediate need for assisting families with the McKinley fire near Talkeetna. Many of the local residents lost everything to the fire and had only the clothes on their backs. The shower/laundry trailer was set up near Montana Creek Baptist Church where Alaska Baptists provided showers and laundry facilities to victims and firefighters alike.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED: While tools and equipment are needed, the greatest need is for trained volunteers who can be mobilized in a moment's notice to respond. The next available trainings are scheduled for Saturday, November 16 at University Baptist Church in Anchorage. There will be a class on First Aid/CPR for $20, a second class will be Disaster Clean-up Training, and in the afternoon the class offered will be Introduction to Alaska Baptist Disaster Relief which includes the introduction to Disaster Relief and the Shower and Laundry Ministry Training. You can check out training opportunities or find more information at this website: www.abcdr.org.

I personally want to express my appreciation to all of the volunteers who have committed to serving our communities in this way. I also want to express great appreciation to Gary Bearce for the tireless efforts he offers as the Coordinator for Alaska Baptist Disaster Relief.

TAKE A RISK

Think about what could be done with a little bit of money. You could buy a new-to-you car; take a vacation; or invest it toward your future.

What could your church do with $2000? You could throw a party for the church to thank all of the workers and people that help in ministry; assist those in need with rent, food or clothing; plan to have a summer intern who could live with someone in the church and work a summer project. Maybe the money could be used to do evangelistic projects in and around the church; or host a Fall Festival. Servant evangelism is a great way to minister and show love to a community surrounding a church. The list is as creative and varied as a community. Innovation in reaching a community can come in many forms.

Kevin Harney, in his book Organic Outreach, says “A church that wants to reach its community will take risks, try new things, and seek innovative ways to serve and build redemptive relationships with those who are not part of the church. We need to be willing to risk failure to discover new levels of success.” Are our ways of reaching out in the community causing us any risk? Church leaders should lead out in risk-taking. We have nothing to lose but everything to gain for the sake of the kingdom. We may risk our comfort, traditions and preferences, but to reach the lost, risk is worth it all. We may risk our music, potlucks, preaching style, and programs that we grew up loving at church. What are we willing to risk in order to reach out?

I want to invite you to risk hearing innovative ideas about reaching our communities. Come, bring your congregation and leaders to our State Evangelism Conference, February 3-4. Not only are we highlighting pastors who risked it all to reach others, but helped churches to revitalize, replant and retool to become effective.

Among those joining us this year is Mark Hallock, pastor of Calvary Family of Churches. In 2009, Mark and about 30 members of the church started to love their neighborhood again. Ten years later, this church has grown, planted and helped revitalize churches that form a network of 17 churches.

Mark Clifton will also be joining us this year. Originally from Kansas, Mark became the pastor of a dying church. He was called to replant that church and risked taking the challenge. God worked at Wornall Road Baptist Church, and they were part of replanting many other churches in Kansas and Missouri. Mark currently serves as senior director of Replanting/Revitalization at NAMB, helping struggling churches get on a road to recovery.

Also coming to the State Evangelism Conference is Joel Southerland, the pastor of Peavine Baptist Church in Rock Spring, Georgia. Beginning in December 2016 he has led the church to double in size with several hundred baptisms. His energy and enthusiasm exemplify his leadership. He has much to share about taking a stagnant church and getting it moving again.

Will you come, bring your leaders and your people for a great conference? We all need encouragement. We all need to be pushed a little. We all need to take risk for the gospel.

Have you thought about what you might do with $2000 to reach the lost? The Alaska Baptist Resource Network makes evangelism funds available to churches. We will match your church up to $1000 for a total of $2000 to help your church with an evangelism event or plan. Make plans for this winter but remember, it is not too early to plan for next summer. Give me a call and let us explore possibilities. What will you risk to reach?

The Alaska Baptist Convention and MinistrySafe are partnering together to help our Alaska churches protect children from sexual abuse by providing access to online employee and volunteer screening, training and certification at a very low cost.
